

Distribution of individual weekday-weekend differences

Distributions use unweighted participant-level differences and show the central 98% of values to keep the distribution readable; median lines are calculated from all retained participants. Positive values indicate higher weekday activity.